Knowing Where You Come From

Fr. Art Baranowski

When I visited by brother and his wife in Florida last February, I met their friends—Marty and Harriet. They are from New York City and are Jewish. But, Marty and Harriet are ethnic Jews; they are not religious Jews. They know that they are Jewish but they do not know much about their own religious tradition. Their parents were Jewish and so are Marty and Harriet but Marty and Harriet do not know what being Jewish means.

I believe most Catholics are like Marty and Harriet. Most of us do not know what being Catholic really means. Our parents happened to belong to the Catholic Church and, because of our parents or spouse; we belong to their church. For most young people, the different Christian Churches are equally good and not too different from each other. Many Catholics approach church as an individual choice based on personal likes or dislikes rather than what the Lord intends.

As a pastor, I am saddened because the majority of our parishioners do not realize their own Catholic faith tradition. And, they do not seem to care to learn.

Welcome New Parishioners

Jim and Tina (Pond) Dunn and children Austin 8, Andrea 6, Averie 4, and Alivia 2 live in Kimball. They have been part of St. Joe's Parish and St. Stephen's Parish and are a welcome addition to St. Christopher's. Tina grew up and received the sacraments of initiation at St. Chris. Jim grew up in Port Huron and became a Catholic as an adult. This young couple has an openness to God and to the Church. That openness makes all the difference for them and for us. Tina and Jim would make a positive faith difference for any parish community and we are fortunate in having them with us.

This Sunday's Gospel

Mark 13, 24-32

Doesn't it seem that evil wins out over good? Jesus is executed by the religious leaders and dies a criminal. The church, that Mark's gospel originally was written for, was experiencing great persecution by the Roman authorities—just for following Christ and trying to stay true to him. But, this world is not the last word and there is a new world coming and God will call together his elect (his chosen ones).

1. In tough times, what keeps you going?
2. How can you stay more aware and more faithful to the work God has given you?
3. What matters most to God in your life? What secondary concerns are taking too much of your focus? What would help you keep first things first?

Last Sunday, there was a 3-hour workshop for all ages on the Church and the only parishioners attending were 1st Communion families, people in the RCIA, and a handful of others.

The Catholic community goes back 20 centuries, all the way to the Apostles. All the other Christian churches are branches off the original Catholic trunk. The other churches took a valuable part of the Catholic Church with them but they also left much behind. Our Church has a wisdom and a world-view that can shape a person today and enrich a person today. But, we are like Marty and Harriet not knowing their Jewish heritage. Most of us do not know our Catholic heritage, either. Sad!

Young People and the Church

As you read these words: Theresa Doyle, 4 adult youth ministers, and I will be attending a study weekend on Catholic youth retreats in the Grand Rapids area. I regret being away for the weekend masses, especially with Fr. Britz gone. But, these weekend retreats can be a way for young people at St. Christopher's Parish to experience being Catholic and what being Catholic means. The six of us from the parish need to study various retreat formats and then put on a retreat for our kids here. The Youth Ministers giving up their Friday, Saturday, and Sunday for this time in Grand Rapids are: Beth Hill, David and Kari Stevens, and Denny Socha. Please, pray for us.

Most Sunday evenings, the high school youth of our parish meet. There are wonderful faith-filled kids and they often inspire the adults working with them. There are eight adult Youth Ministers for those Sunday nights. They spend much time in planning and give up each Sunday evening because they care about the faith of our young people. Our Sunday night Youth Ministers are: Lisa and Dan Curley, Debbie Forster, Mark Krall, Lori Malinowski, Rich St. Coeur, Maggie St. John, and Jack Quinlan. Please pray for them, too. And, let them know that you pray for them because prayer helps people persevere and stay with the task of guiding young people.

Stewardship Thought...

The readings today speak of the end of the world and the coming of the kingdom. The bishop's pastoral on stewardship says clearly that "that 'life to come' is in continuity with this present life through the human goods, the worthy human purposes, which people foster now." May our good stewardship help us to be numbered among the chosen on the last day!
